An Extraordinary Gift for an Extraordinary College

This year, as we mark the 100th anniversary of the official naming of our institution as Spelman College, we celebrate another incredible milestone: a historic gift of $100 million. It is the largest single donation ever to Spelman and to any historically black college or university (HBCU).

This extraordinary gift was donated by philanthropist, businesswoman and Spelman trustee Ronda Stryker and her husband, William Johnston. Stryker is a longtime Spelman supporter, and one of our longest-serving board members, who has already donated $70 million to the College over the past two decades.

The $100 million Stryker-Johnston gift is significant in several ways. It builds on the case that HBCUs are worth the investment. Gifts like these are game-changing, allowing the beneficiaries to expand and accelerate their missions. Although they continue to produce graduates who make outstanding contributions to our nation, HBCUs have not been among the recipients of such generosity.

It is important to note that this gift to Spelman comes on the heels of a $100 million grant from Lilly Endowment Inc. to support the United Negro College Fund's (UNCF) capital campaign, which aims to build a pooled endowment for its 37 member institutions. The Lilly donation is a hopeful sign that the increase in gifts to HBCUs that we saw during the post-George Floyd era was not just a short-term reaction to a tragedy, but rather a new-found awareness that long-term support of Black colleges and universities is, indeed, a wise investment in the national interest.

The Stryker gift also affirms that Spelman's institutional mission to be the premier institution for the education of women of African descent is as important today as when it was founded. For decades, Stryker has worked to empower women through higher education and to advance opportunities for marginalized groups. She believes, as we do, that educating women is one of the best ways to improve the human condition on all levels – personal, familial, community, institutional and societal.

Finally, the gift gives Spelman a major boost as we continue to build on our proud history of achievements and to support our students now and far into the future. In fact, the majority of the gift – $75 million – is for endowed scholarships for our students. Endowing these funds helps to ensure support for students far into the future. Rather than spend these dollars immediately, they are invested to increase their value over time by earning interest. Each year, we will be able to use a portion of that interest for current use and leave the rest to continue to grow the endowment. Assuming investment returns remain strong, the endowment will earn more interest every year in perpetuity, creating a reliable source of funding for student scholarships.

Spelman's top long-term priority is to continue to attract the best and brightest students and help remove the financial barriers that might prevent them from enrolling and graduating from the College. About 80 percent of our students receive financial aid, and these new scholarships will go a long way to reduce the financial burden on current and future students who are eager for a Spelman education so that they can make their mark on the world.

To address some of the College's other priorities, we will use the remaining $25 million of the gift to improve student housing, to develop an academic focus on public policy, democracy and technology, and provide flexible funding to meet critical strategic needs. These initiatives are tied to our recently launched 2024-2028 Strategic Plan: Elevat-ED. The plan's two key pillars, Empowering Excellence and Inspiring Change, include goals for our students and academic programs, our workplace and infrastructure and impacting positive change in our neighborhood and global community.

Mere words cannot adequately express how grateful I am to Ronda Stryker and William Johnston for their continued support of Spelman. I am also grateful to Lovette Russell, C'83, chair of our board of trustees, who nurtured the relationship with our donors, and the Spelman presidents whose leadership before I arrived ensured that Spelman is an extraordinary college deserving of such an extraordinary gift.

I am also equally grateful for the continued support from our alumnae, who are working tirelessly to remove financial burdens for our students. In this edition, you will read about the 20/20 Visionaries and their work to establish a special endowment to support their Spelman sisters. You will also learn about the Class of 1991, who led efforts to raise over $1 million for the Dream the Boldest Dreams Endowed Scholarship honoring Dr. Johnnetta Betsch Cole, Ph.D. And we are always proud to highlight our Donor Roll contributors.

I am honored to be leading Spelman at this incredible moment in our history.

Spelman Alumna Takes Helm of the John and Lillian Miles Lewis Foundation

BY DONNA WILLIAMS LEWIS, C'79

Detria Austin Everson, C'95, has worked for decades to develop opportunities for others.

Her expertise lies in strategic forecasting, managing multimillion-dollar nonprofit budgets, orchestrating large-scale, multi-city events, spearheading corporate philanthropy and advocating for vulnerable populations in healthcare, housing and wealth generation.

Now, she is continuing in that tradition as she carries on the legacy of a civil rights legend.

In November, Everson was tapped to become CEO of the John and Lillian Miles Lewis Foundation, an organization that launched on the late congressman's birthday two years ago.

Lewis, who died in 2020, created the foundation in 2017 to promote his and his late wife's passion for purposeful living and to inspire what Lewis called "good trouble, necessary trouble!"

To be trusted with shepherding that mission is a significant honor, said Everson.

"Not only do we have the amazing work that was left behind with him helping to write the legislation that created the Smithsonian's National Museum of African American History and Culture, but also his example of selfless sacrifice to protect the right to vote and bring together people across party lines, cultural lines and other lines we use to divide," she said. "He wanted people to find a way to live and work together in peace."

Three months into the job, Everson has been creating partnerships with other institutions, strategizing on voting initiatives, continuing the production of the foundation's signature "Good Trouble Talks" series and starting to work with school leaders on ways to support two Atlanta-area schools named for Lewis.

Michael E. Collins, who served as chief of staff and floor assistant to Lewis for almost 20 years, chairs the board of the John and Lillian Miles Lewis Foundation.

"As board chair, I'm proud to witness Detria's leadership as CEO," he said. "She has taken the rein and is carrying it forward. She is committed to uplifting Congressman (Lewis) and Mrs. Lillian Lewis's legacy."

Everson previously served for eight years as founding executive director of the Martin Luther King Sr. Community Resources Collaborative. Before that, she worked for the Neighborhood Assistance Corporation of America (NACA), the nation's largest nonprofit community advocacy and homeownership organization, ultimately rising to the position of chief operating officer.

"I love God and it is my faith that helps me through life as I endeavor to achieve personal success in family, love, community and career," said Everson. "My husband, Eddie, is one of my strongest supporters and I am grateful for him."

Everson says she received equal doses of caring and business sense as the daughter of a state social worker and a veteran with a day job who owned restaurants in Little Rock and Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

"I always tell people I was born at a crossroads between altruism and ingenuity," she said.

As a teenager, Everson and her younger sister, Emberly, opened and operated their own shoe store, learning about management, payroll, taxes, procurement and customer service.

The store closed after she left for Spelman, the college she'd been determined to attend since she first walked through its gates in the eighth grade.

"I fell in love with the energy and the history of these amazing African American women who had gone on to do significant things in the world," she said.

Love for her alma mater has never waned. Everson is the fundraising lead for her class and has been involved with setting up three endowments at Spelman. She mentors Spelman women and has served as an officer in the National Alumnae

In January, she was appointed to the board of the Winthrop Rockefeller Foundation, which “seeks to disrupt the systems that block Arkansans who are striving to get out of poverty.”

“For me to serve in a position that allows me to improve the lives of Arkansans and work underneath a family name that I believe is primarily responsible for there being a Spelman College as we know it, I could not have asked for a more full-circle moment,” said Everson.

Alumna Brings Together Two Iconic Leaders of Black Female Empowerment

BY DONNA WILLIAMS LEWIS, C'79

Two icons of Black female empowerment intersected last fall when Caroline Wanga, president and CEO of Essence Ventures, appeared at Sisters Chapel for a fireside chat with Spelman President Helene D. Gayle.

The November event was spearheaded by Spelman alumna Alex Ebanks, C'2012, who is in her second year as vice president for communications at Essence Ventures, parent company of Essence magazine. The Atlanta resident also was selected for a 2023 Atlanta Business Chronicle 40 Under 40 Award.

She saw linking Essence with Spelman in the fireside chat as a way of giving back to her alma mater and “bringing together two things that I love.”

“I grew up with Essence and I obviously love Spelman. I wanted to attend Spelman since I was in the eighth grade,” said Ebanks. “So to be able to bring those two together and to find out that they really hadn’t been brought together in that way before was really important for me.”

Captivating the audience with her candor and humor, Wanga stressed the importance of finding one’s true purpose in life and living life authentically.

Sharing her go-to mantra, she said, “Who you are is who you are. If you cannot be who you are where you are, change where you are, not who you are.”

After more than 15 years at the Target Corporation, where she rose from being a warehouse operations intern to the C-suite position of chief officer for Culture, Diversity and Inclusion and vice president for Human Resources, Wanga was tapped to lead Essence Ventures in 2020. Her portfolio of businesses includes Essence Communications Inc., Essence Festival of Culture, Beautycon and Afropunk festivals, and the company’s film production arm, Essence Studios.

Wanga said she thought Essence had dialed the wrong number when she was offered the job. Nothing she had done before qualified her to lead a media organization, she said, adding that the opportunity came into her life the minute she started living authentically.

“The way that I was living life was necessary in the moment for what this brand needed,” she explained.

Wanga also made a surprising confession: she is low in high self-esteem.

“What you are experiencing is courage in spite of,” Wanga said, sharing her tactics for dealing with her “very vicious inner saboteur.”

She said she’s become a pro at bouncing back from defeat by “changing my relationship with failure.”

“I established a threshold for it. I decided that I don’t get to declare something a bad day unless I fail five times, actually six times, because five is still within my bank,” said Wanga.

Wanga was joined at Spelman by Ebanks and a host of other Essence Ventures staff members who were in Atlanta for a separate event, the Essence Girls United Disruptors Summit.

Ebanks said she was moved by students’ questions and reactions to the fireside chat and by the interest her colleagues have shown in continued interaction with Spelman students.

“It was such a powerful moment for the students and for the alumnae who were there,” she said, “because it was really bringing together two longstanding legacy entities that have been at the forefront of being a Black woman, uplifting Black women, celebrating Black women.”

No More Dreams Deferred

Class of 2000 establishes endowed scholarship to help admitted students achieve dream of a Spelman education

BY ROZALYNN S. FRAZIER, C'2000

As the U.S. News and World Report No. 1 historically black college and university (HBCU) in the nation for the 17th year in a row, upwards of 13,000 young women apply to Spelman College each year with the dream of becoming a Spelman woman. For many of those accepted, it is a joyous time, but if financial help is not available, their dream could be deferred.

It is these women — the ones who are unable to pass through the gates of Spelman due to financial constraints — that have always stood out to Aeva Gaymon Doomes, M.D., C'2000.

“I really thought of the students Spelman misses out on,” she said.

Doomes met one while serving as an attending physician on the children’s unit and chair of child psychiatry at a hospital. When one of her residents realized Doomes had matriculated at Spelman, she mentioned how she had been accepted to Spelman, but financial difficulty precluded her from attending. Doomes saw this as a loss not just for the young woman, but for Spelman.”

“She was by far the most impressive resident I ever had,” she recalled. “I didn’t want Spelman to miss out on incredible Black women because of the cost of tuition.”

This student’s story, as well as Doomes vision to ultimately see Spelman become the first tuition-free HBCU based on the College’s endowment, sparked the idea for a special giving initiative. Meeting with Spelman leadership, it was clear to Doomes that to provide a feasible student scholarship, the initial investment needed to be well over $500,000 — which meant “finding at least 20 classmates that would [each] commit to giving at least $25,000.” She also wanted to be able to present the first scholarship by 2025, which would mark the 25th reunion for the Class of 2000.

While Doomes admits she got many nos before she got to her first yes, ultimately, she convinced 20 of her Class of 2000 sisters to join her in opening their purses. Their cause became known as the Spelman 20/20 Visionaries Endowment Fund, and they successfully raised more than $500,000. Their first scholarship is slated to be given out this year.

Nicole “Nikki” Yvonne Williams, who was the first to say yes to Spelman 20/20 Visionaries, had never given a donation this large to any organization. But she said she knew this was for Spelman and that God would provide a way.

“Spelman blessed me in so many ways, and I wanted to be a blessing by giving back in a significant and impactful way,” she said. “When Aeva approached me with the idea for the endowed scholarship, I knew this was a great opportunity to join with my classmates to create a lasting legacy for future Spelmanites.”

Lauren Copeland N’Namdi, a fourth-generation HBCU graduate, was also immediately on board when approached because she trusted Doomes’s vision.

“Those four years on campus are my most treasured memories,” she said. “I knew my contribution could aid in the development of another young women’s future. It became my reason why.”

For Fonda D. Martin, M.D., the reason was even more personal. She gave as a way to pay tribute to her grandmother, the late Rosa Lee Davenport, who attended Spelman but was unable to complete the degree because of financial constraints. Martin said that her grandmother spoke about Spelman often and even though she didn’t graduate, she felt that just being able to attend Spelman was a dream fulfilled.

“One of the happiest days of my grandmother’s life was when I graduated from Spelman College,” said Martin. With her donation, she is not only fulfilling her grandmother’s dream, which she said “has been a great honor and very humbling,” but also is helping to ensure “all the talented young women who come to Spelman can carry on the Spelman legacy without the burden of financial debt.”

While the Class of 2000 has done an impressive job of raising funds, Spelman 20/20 Visionaries hope this will inspire an opportunity for friendly sisterly competition in giving among other classes.

“We want to inspire a new culture of giving at Spelman,” she said. “We want another group of women to come up and do it bigger and do it better [because] I think we all want a future for every young Spelman graduate to be able to dream without limits and achieve without boundaries. We are unwavering in that vision.”

Dream the Boldest Dreams Scholarship
A 'Blessing,' a Collaboration and an 'Intensely Special Gift'

FOR MCBRIDE AND JONES, THIS ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIP WAS A WAY TO THANK COLE, WHO EARLIER THIS YEAR WAS TAPPED AS UNCF'S PRESIDENT-IN-RESIDENCE AND CO-CHAIRPERSON OF ITS $1 BILLION CAPITAL CAMPAIGN, WHILE CONTINUING HER LIFE'S WORK IN EDUCATION.

Representing the Class of '91, Spelman alumnae Sabrena McBride and Tayari Jones pose with Spelman sister and Dream the Boldest Dream Scholarship recipient Amarea Wells, C'2026.

In fall 1987, young women of the Class of 1991 entered the gates of Spelman College for the very first time. Along with them, a new college president, Johnnetta Betsch Cole, Ph.D. She was the seventh person and the first Black woman to lead the institution. The Class of '91 and Cole, who previously held professorships at Washington State University, the University of Massachusetts, Amherst and Hunter College in New York City, would form an unbreakable bond — one that has lasted well beyond their tenure at Spelman.

In 2016, as the Class of '91 celebrated its 25th class reunion, they reached out to Cole to ask her to participate with them — and she did. There was one problem: it was the year that their class had the lowest giving numbers — even with their remarkable participation rates.

“It was kind of embarrassing,” Sabrena McBride, C'91, a senior technical product manager at T-Mobile, recalled.

On the bright side, that embarrassment fueled McBride and her friend, bestselling author and Spelman alumna Tayari Jones, C'91, to galvanize 20 classmates to each donate $5,000. The total, $100,000, would allow them to establish the Dream the Boldest Dreams Endowed Scholarship: A Scholarship in Honor of Johnnetta B. Cole.

A fitting tribute for the distinguished scholar, anthropologist and author who had poured into Spelman during her decade at the helm. From raising $113.8 million for the college's endowment to erecting the Johnnetta Betsch Cole Living & Learning Center II and the Camille Olivia Hanks, Ed.D., Academic Center to establishing the Spelman College Mentorship Program, the International Affairs Center and the Office of Community Service, which saw the community service program designated as a White House Point of Light, Cole, who was affectionately known as “Sister Prez,” raised the College's profile, student enrollment and overall ranking.

For McBride and Jones, this endowed scholarship was a way to thank Cole, who earlier this year was tapped as UNCF's president-in-residence and co-chairperson of its $1 billion capital campaign, while continuing her life's work in education. Which is why when they learned the interest from the initial $100,000 raised would only yield about $2500 per year for its recipients, the duo, at the suggestion of Kim Hines Bullock, C'91, increased their fundraising goal to $1 million.

It also became clear that “although we love her so much, [Dr. Cole] does not belong to the Class of 1991,” said Jones.

As President Emerita of Bennet College in Greensboro, NC, the only other HBCU dedicated to educating Black women; former Director of the Smithsonian's National Museum of African Art; an awardee of the National Humanities Medal from President Joseph R. Biden and the recipient of numerous honors and awards, her impact has been widely felt. Plus, the larger picture was to help educate Black women, and to do so meant allowing other Spelman women — and even those beyond the gates — to lend their financial support.

Scholarship recipient Amarea Wells, C'2026 with President Emerita Cole

As McBride and Jones moved beyond their graduating class, who had already raised roughly $170,000, more and more students, faculty and friends who had been touched by Cole reached into their pockets, often giving way above the $5000 ask. Among them were M. Monique McCloud-Manley, C'98, with a $50,000 gift; Maude Lofton C'66, McBride's and Jones's first “big donor” and Dr. Marcus Crawford with $25,000 gifts; Celeste Watkins Hayes, Ph.D., C'86, as well as McBride and Jones with $15,000 gifts; and D'Angela Proctor with a $10,000 gift. One anonymous donor even gave $250,000.

Eventually, McBride and Jones were able to bring in collective members of four groups — the Class of 1996, the Class of 1998, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Incorporated and the Associations of Black Anthropologists — to each donate at the $50,000+ giving level.

“I think this scholarship really shows the power of collaboration,” said Jones. “Sabrena and I led the charge on this. But, you know, Dr. Campbell [10th president of Spelman College] got involved to help us reach donors. Other classes got involved. Black women at different institutions got involved. This was really about sisterhood, and that is Dr. Cole's legacy. And to give the gift of an education is a generational gift that builds generational wealth.”

For Cole, this measure was more than just touching. In a letter to the Class of '91, she wrote:

“When I reached the third paragraph of your letter, I had to catch my breath, because it is there that you describe one of the greatest gifts that I could possibly receive. Everything about this gift is intensely special. It is a gift that comes from my dearest Spelman sisters who were the very first incoming class to matriculate during my presidency. It is a gift that will keep on giving, as the generosity of my dearest sisters of the Class of 1991 make it possible for young women who are the first in their families to go to college to receive a baccalaureate degree. It is a gift that puts into practice a belief that I share with my Spelman sisters who first arrived on Spelman's campus when I did. Namely, that doing for others is just the rent you pay for your room on earth. It is a gift that addresses the injustice in our nation that keeps deserving Black women from going to college because, and only because, they lack the financial means to do so.”

The scholarship, named Dream the Boldest Dreams after Cole's 2001 book of the same name, benefits incoming freshman Spelman students who are the first in their families to go to college — something McBride knows all too well.

“I’m a first-generation college student,” she said. “I enrolled in Spelman having no idea where I was going to get the money from. And when I think about the scholarship that came through for me - it was the NAACP scholarship, Herbert Lehmann Education Fund. I’ll never forget that name, and I give back to that scholarship every year.”

This scholarship made it possible for McBride to matriculate through Spelman, and she wants the Dream the Boldest Dreams scholarship, which guarantees $10,000 per year for the first two award recipients and $15,000 for all students following with one new recipient every year, to do the same for someone else at Spelman. And with the first one awarded to Amarea Wells C’2026, who is studying to become an emergency room physician, it will.

“This scholarship was a blessing and not just because it helps cover my tuition, but because I have met so many amazing, genuine people,” said Wells. She applied for the scholarship after hearing Jones speak at Spelman about the impact Cole had on her journey to becoming a successful author, which includes being an Oprah’s Book Club pick.

The scholarship, which is renewable if the recipient maintains a 3.0 GPA with no requirement to reapply each year, hasn’t just opened a door financially, but also strengthened Wells’ Spelman sisterhood circle. She noted that not only has Jones “become someone I can talk to and count on regardless of what I need,” but that McBride and the other members of the Class of ‘91 have showered her with love and positivity. Meeting Dr. Cole, who Wells said inspires women to be the best version of themselves, at the scholarship presentation was a bonus.

“Having this scholarship motivates me to live out my boldest dream and to make everyone who supports me proud,” she said. “I am forever grateful to be the first recipient of the Dream the Boldest Dream scholarship.”

Wells is the first scholarship awardee, but she won’t be the last. To continue making a choice to change the world, McBride and Jones are clear that alumnae must do more than just be counted among the alumnae giving back.

“That is just participation,” said Jones.

Instead, Spelman must make the biggest asks, added McBride, and alumnae must answer the call.

“It’s tapping into people’s emotions and reminding them of what it meant to attend Spelman,” she said, “and what it means for your sisters to follow in your footsteps.”

UNRAVELING “THREADED”

Recent Quilt Exhibit by Black Women Artists Stitches Together Art, Race and History

BY LARRY CALHOUN

Oh, how we children had fun with Big Mama’s quilts. We could hide behind them, playing tag, as they hung on the clothesline to air. Or pile under one, like hamsters, snuggling to keep warm on a cold, drafty night. We could make floor pallets for sleepovers with cousins or pitch a tent using kitchen chairs.

Today, with a new narrative as works of art with a historical grounding, many quilts like Big Mama’s can be found in prestigious art galleries and museums across the country. They hang from walls with discreet barriers that signal hands off.

In the Spelman College Museum of Fine Art, a recent exhibit, “Threaded,” by contemporary Black women artists, presented the use of textiles in artworks of quilts and paintings. Nearly 30 pieces incorporated materials that included cotton, polyester, wool, lace, velvet and kente cloth. They were accompanied by a video on the quiltmakers of Gee’s Bend, Alabama – Black women who have passed down their knowledge and skills with fabrics through generations.

“The beauty of this show is that people can relate to it, to say my grandmother or my mother had that or did that, or I have quilts like these in my house. They see themselves and their families in these pieces,” said Liz Andrews, Ph.D., museum director. “So often, people think art is something distant and removed

“The exhibition was curated in-house,” Andrews noted.

“I want to be sure that we showcase our own permanent collection, since so many museums often present artworks on tour from other museums. We actually own seven of the quilts from Gee’s Bend that were on display. These traditional quilts were our inspiration for the show, which introduces quilts in conversation with contemporary art.”

Andrews explained that textiles are not usually considered as important art like paintings or sculptures, and that quilts are thought of as just practical, for warmth and comfort.

“This exhibition demonstrated the diversity of ways Black women today are using textiles in art, along with the past quiltmakers,” she said.

How can “Threaded” encourage academic debate on art, race and history? Andrews replied that in quilting, for example, there is a history of hidden messages and codes that the enslaved could follow. One pattern, the North Star, when hanging signaled that it was time to follow the North Star to freedom. Another pattern, using a bow from them, for high society and beyond their reach. But historians, collectors, documentarians and even arts foundations have elevated such works as in this showing that garner a new look and respect,” she said.

“THE BEAUTY OF THIS SHOW IS THAT PEOPLE CAN RELATE TO IT, TO SAY MY GRANDMOTHER OR MY MOTHER HAD THAT OR DID THAT, OR I HAVE QUILTS LIKE THESE IN MY HOUSE. THEY SEE THEMSELVES AND THEIR FAMILIES IN THESE PIECES.” – LIZ ANDREWS, PH.D., MUSEUM DIRECTOR tie, was a signal in northern states to alert when slave-catchers were on the roam, and it was time to don a disguise.

“Quilts were much more than just a necessity to recycle old clothes and fabrics for warmth,” she explained.

Andrews encourages alumnae to “ignite the spirit of legacy” to support the museum.

“We want them to join Friends of the Museum with their financial contributions. Also, volunteering with us can create valuable memories with students and museum patrons,” she offered.

The show was curated by Andrews, Karen Comer Lowe and Brandi Pettijohn, Ph.D., with input from the curatorial intern, Tenesha Carter Johnson.

An upcoming exhibition, “Ming Smith: Feeling the Future,” is the artist’s first solo exhibition at a major institution to survey her work from the early 1970s through the present. Highlighting Smith’s improvisational and experimental approach to photography, and amplifying the heartbeat of Black life, the exhibition will open in late August and run through early December 2024.

THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE SPELMAN GLEE CLUB

Sisters in Song and Ambassadors Strong

BY LARRY CALHOUN

Like any proud father, Dr. Kevin Johnson, director of the renowned Spelman College Glee Club for the past 25 years, speaks glowingly of its members, and not just for the notes they can hit and hold. The associate professor of music says he can still be impressed by their commitment to their studies, campus and community involvement, and their love of Spelman.

“For many years, I have heard the expression from them that if you don’t plan to attend Spelman, then don’t plan to visit, implying you’ll fall in love with its legacy when you walk these sacred grounds as a high school visitor,” Johnson said. “Also, many of our members were first introduced to the school through a glee club concert at their high school or in their hometown.”

Fresh off a hectic, six-city spring tour with 65 students, Johnson participated in a phone interview with this writer on the occasion of the 100th anniversary of the group this year.

Glee club members serve as ambassadors for the College. Please explain how and why this is important.

KJ: On tour, performances include at churches and high schools. After we finish a concert, members quickly introduce themselves, their majors and hometowns. High schoolers who are already enthralled by the presentation can see the scope of majors, that you don’t have to be a music major or a musician. One high schooler this tour was slumped over in her chair with her feet propped up when we began. By the fourth song, she was sitting erect. So, the glee club is one of the strongest recruitment tools, given the attention it commands. Take a poll of the choir and half will say they came to Spelman, influenced by the glee club.

Describe the scope of the group’s repertoire.

KJ: Like most choirs in higher education, we try to do pieces that come from the standard women’s choral repertoire for colleges, but lately I’ve been paying more attention to including Black cultural works: Negro spirituals, funk, jazz, hip-hop and rap, but with new twists. We do it all these days. Sometimes I wonder if I’m too Black when compared to previous archived choir footage, but Spelman has a unique mission to uphold the history of African-American music and then go beyond. We are forward-looking, pushing every envelope we can find while still respecting tradition. In this, some pieces have gone viral, a forever hit on social media that technology now provides.

Note some of the highlights and range of performances before dignitaries, celebrities and national/international figures.

KJ: (With a smile in his voice) Want me to drop some names? President Barack Obama and first lady Michelle Obama. Aretha Franklin. Oprah Winfrey. Stevie Wonder. The Mormon Tabernacle Choir. The Atlanta Ballet. The Atlanta Symphony Orchestra. Yo-Yo Ma. President Jimmy Carter. We have traveled internationally and sang with other symphonies, too, and with many of the divas, including Kathleen Battle and Jennifer Holliday.

At a recent performance, I was mesmerized by a beautiful, unexpectedly low rendition for a female chorus. Do some members actually sing tenor, or was I hearing enough low-alto voices that can mimic the tenor sound?

KJ: At Spelman, we are known for our low altos. We are not your typical women’s chorus. We got that low. We got that high. We got that power. We got that funk. I have a student we recruited from Texas who’s coming in the fall. She sings lower than any female I have ever heard. Down the road, we might do a Temptations song, so she can sing like Melvin.

For those music majors, or those interested in professional vocal performance, what do you offer to help develop, but protect their voices?

KJ: We teach what they need. Those going into vocal performance generally study voice and take applied voice or private voice. They get a good amount of vocal training, and I take them from there and make them section leaders.

“A Choice to Change the World” is the tagline for the school. How has the musical selection by the same name become such a popular anthem for the College?

KJ: In 2007, the communications office alerted me that we had a new tagline for Spelman and requested me to write a song for it. I asked a mentee, Sarah Stephens, now Sarah Stephens Benibo, to assist and she came back with the lyrics. We crafted what you hear today, probably all within a month. We sing the song at the end of every concert now. It seems to want to stick around.

Name a few notable alumnae who were members of the Glee Club.

KJ: Oh, I’m bad with names and still call alumnae by the nicknames I gave them from the choir. But Dr. Audrey Forbes Manley, actress Cassi Davis, provost Pamela E. Scott-Johnson and others who are not household names were a part of the club. Also, many former students have gone on to Broadway.

How can alumnae and friends of the College “ignite the spirit of legacy” and support the glee club?

KJ: We are about to mount our centennial giving season this fall to raise scholarships for students, with a concert at State

Farm Arena that will feature the Morman Tabernacle Choir. Then in April of 2025, we’ll hold a 100th anniversary reunion concert on campus, where the alumnae choir will join the current singers.

The writer conducted phone interviews also with two alumnae, Dr. Brittney Boykin, C’2011, assistant professor of music at Georgia Tech, and Sarah Stephens Benibo, C’2007, worship pastor at Embassy City Church in Dallas.

What are your fondest memories of the Glee Club?

BB: As Dr. Johnson’s accompanist, I wrote my first piece as a student, “Go Down, Moses,” for a composition class. Ten years later, I saw the glee club perform it with the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra and was overwhelmed. I never thought I could be a composer, and there are not a lot of Black women composers. But that’s what Spelman can do. The glee club really cultivated my love for choral music.

SB: There was a standard of sound, a standard of dress, a standard of character, and you wanted to uphold them for those who came before you. I remember during spring tours we actually had home-stays, where students spent nights in the homes of Spelman alumnae. They would open their doors to complete strangers and treat us like family. We had breakfast with them the next day, then got back on the road. That’s sisterhood.

Like so many before them, Boykin and Stephens Benibo made the choice of Spelman. Both made a choice to change the world. One wrote the song about it.

Donor Roll 2023

Fiscal Year 2023 (July 1, 2022, through June 30, 2023) marked an exceptional fundraising year for Spelman College, surpassing $52 million raised. We extend our heartfelt gratitude to each of our donors for their unwavering support, including the generous new leadership gifts and commitments of over $36 million. Fiscal Year 2023 marked the conclusion of the transformative Spelman Ascends Campaign on December 31, 2022, which raised over $339 million through the philanthropic efforts of our alumnae, foundations, corporations, faculty, staff, students, parents and friends of the College. These remarkable achievements are a direct result of our strategic plan and the undaunted dedication to the College's campaign priorities to Deliver the Spelman Promise, Elevate the Spelman Difference, Enhance Operational Excellence, and Promote Academic Innovation. We celebrate the generosity and vision of our donors whose support propelled us beyond our goals. Please join us in expressing our sincere appreciation to the FY 2023 Leadership Donors.

Lauren Wesley Wilson, C'2006, has written What Do You Need?, a book outlining the necessary skills and unwritten rules women of color need to know in order to thrive in the workplace. Wilson draws on her own experiences as the CEO of ColorComm Corporation, a multi-million-dollar communications company. In What Do You Need?, Wilson discusses imposter syndrome, building a network, knowing when to walk away from a dead-end job and more. Whether you are a woman of color seeking to thrive in the workplace or an ally committed to creating an inclusive environment where everyone can excel, What Do You Need? is your indispensable road map to understanding, supporting and empowering women of color in their careers.

In The Art of Desire, Alex Walton discovers that truth can be stranger — and far more dangerous — than fiction after a chance meeting with a strikingly handsome stranger, a mysterious obelisk and a lost kingdom. In this exciting romantic thriller written by Stacey Abrams, C'95, under her nom de plume Selena Montgomery, Alex finds herself in a whirlwind turn of events that changes her life forever.

Peace, Grace, Patience: A Devotional for Anyone Going Through the Storms of Life is a 40-day devotional written by Antia Nicole Salley, C'2014.

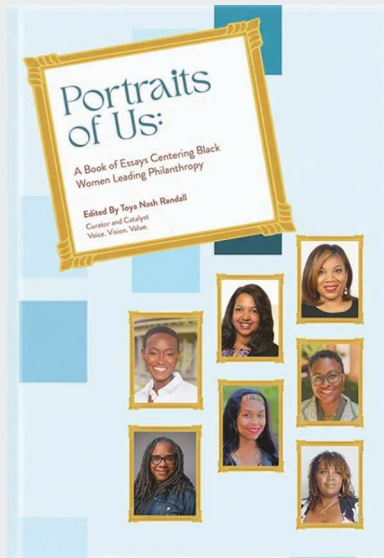

Designed to bring timeless wisdom to everyday life, each day features a short Scripture, a reflection passage and a prayer. For those facing the difficult trials of life, Peace, Grace, Patience: A Devotional for Anyone Going Through the Storms of Life brings hope and joy to anyone seeking positivity and joy in their day to day.

What Do You See?, written by Jeryn Alice Turner, C'99, tells an engaging story about a young Black aspiring ballerina on the surface, but delves deep into the universal experience of self-acceptance, self-esteem and awareness that anyone can relate to. The book discusses diversity, inclusion and Black History, while also giving an intrinsic examination of societal issues, such as racial inequality and disparity with the hope of educating and bringing awareness to youth on these topics. However, the book never fails to highlight the overall relatable theme of wanting to feel included and accepted while standing out in a world like the one we live in today. Turner's story also serves as a companion journal, which can help readers build their self-esteem through positive affirmations and mirror exercises, which are both included in the book.

Portraits of Us: A Book of Essays Centering Black Women Leading Philanthropy, co-curated by Summer Jackson, C'2005, features essays written by a multitude of phenomenal Black women authors and writers, which documents networks of Black women's achievements and contributions from nine regions nationwide. Voice. Vision. Value partnered with Blacks in Philanthropy networks and Regional Associations of Grantmakers to produce this body of work to display the former's commitment to research and literature documenting demonstrated by the wisdom, fortitude, and ingenuity of preeminent Black women in philanthropy.

Edited by Priscilla McCutcheon, C'2004, Latrica Best and Theresa Rajack-Talley, Beyond the Kitchen Table: Black Women and Global Food Systems delves into the ways that Black women have used food as both nourishment and a component of community building on an international scale. Through expert contributions, this selection also looks at the work Black women are doing related to nutrition, food insecurity, scientific and technological food initiatives and healthier food systems.

In Narratives of Narcolepsy in Everyday Life: Exploring Intricacies of Identity, Sleepiness, and Place, Nicole Eugene, C'2003, examines living with narcolepsy — zeroing in on how the condition affects the everyday lives of those diagnosed. The book also includes a personal essay by Eugene, detailing her own unique experience with narcolepsy as a Black woman.

A finalist for the 2023 National Book Critics Circle John Leonard Prize, Black Pastoral by Ariana Benson, C'2019, masterfully uses poetry to explore, elevate and showcase the enduring connection between the Black experience and nature. This selection also presents a multi-faceted relationship between our history, our culture and how nature weaves throughout both.

Season 2 of “High on the Hog,” a popular Netflix docuseries about how African American cuisine transformed America, was released on November 22, 2023. In Episode 3, titled “Defiance,” the series links the Atlanta Student Movement of the 1960s with the soulful cuisine of Atlanta, sharing the larger story of the role food played in the civil rights movement. The episode features interviews with Marilyn Pryce Hoytt, C'63, and Dr. Georgianne Thomas, C'64, who played active roles in the protest demonstrations and sit-ins in 1960 also featured is Charles Black, one of the leaders of the Atlanta Student Movement and a Morehouse College alumnus. Last year, the docuseries won Outstanding Documentary (Television) at the 55th Annual NAACP Image Awards.

Vernita Jackson C'68, was chosen by the Parkside Elementary School staff as Paraprofessional of the year for the 2023- 2024 academic year. The APS award was presented on November 3, 2023.

Ellana Stinson, C'2004, was recently interviewed by CanvasRebel to discuss the founding of a natural plant-based hair care line named Safo Hair. Stinson’s mission is to enhance lives by improving access to high-quality and safe hair care products. Last year, Safo Hair laid the groundwork to expand into smaller retail shops with the first retailer being Marva Elaine located in Sandy Springs, Georgia.
